

COMMUNITY LIVING
BRITISH COLUMBIA

ATTENTION

Community Living BC (CLBC), a crown agency supporting adults with developmental disabilities, is looking for experienced caregivers and families willing to share their home with an individual in the Port Hardy and Port McNeill areas.

CLBC calls this home sharing. Home Share Providers make a commitment to provide an environment that encourages self-determination, advocacy and social inclusion for the individual, as well as respecting the person's dignity and fostering their good health and personal development.

CLBC is looking for caregivers who have:

- a home suitable for individuals with mobility restrictions
- awareness of seizure management
- an understanding of the aging process
- the ability to care for individuals with chronic illness
- the ability to provide physical support including lifting and transfers
- knowledge of conflict management and non-violent crisis intervention

If you are interested in sharing your home with an adult with developmental disabilities, please provide a resume and covering letter to the Campbell River CLBC office by mail, fax or in-person.
